The Naval Academy

The Naval Academy is located in Annapolis, Maryland. It was founded in 1845 and is the oldest of the three academies. The Naval Academy's mission is to "develop midshipmen morally, intellectually, and physically and to imbue them with the highest ideals of duty, honor, and loyalty in order to prepare them for a career of professional service in the United States Navy."

The Naval Academy offers a four-year undergraduate program that leads to a Bachelor of Science degree. Midshipmen study a variety of subjects, including math, science, engineering, history, and political science. They also participate in military training, athletics, and leadership development programs.

Life at the Naval Academy is challenging, but it is also rewarding. Midshipmen learn the values of honor, courage, and commitment. They also develop strong leadership skills and a deep sense of patriotism.

The Air Force Academy

The Air Force Academy is located in Colorado Springs, Colorado. It was founded in 1954 and is the newest of the three academies. The Air Force Academy's mission is to "educate, train, and inspire men and women to become leaders of character, competence, and consequence in the United States Air Force and in society."

The Air Force Academy offers a four-year undergraduate program that leads to a Bachelor of Science degree. Cadets study a variety of subjects, including math, science, engineering, history, and political science. They also participate in military training, athletics, and leadership development programs.

Life at the Air Force Academy is challenging, but it is also rewarding. Cadets learn the values of integrity, service, and excellence. They also develop strong leadership skills and a deep sense of patriotism.

The Application Process

The application process for the Naval Academy, Air Force Academy, and Military Academy is highly competitive. To be eligible to apply, you must be a United States citizen between the ages of 17 and 23. You must also be in good physical and mental health.

The application process typically begins in the fall of your junior year of high school. You will need to submit a transcript of your grades, a list of your extracurricular activities, and letters of recommendation. You will also need to take the SAT or ACT.

If you are selected for an interview, you will be invited to visit the academy. The interview is an opportunity for you to learn more about the academy and for the academy to learn more about you.
